1. Scope of application

The respect for human rights and the principles mentioned below are mandatory for both frequent suppliers, since they form part of the panel of suppliers of CIE Automotive, S.A., as well as for new suppliers assumed.

The CIE Automotive group complies with these principles by following the sustainable purchasing policy; <https://www.cieautomotive.com/en/web/guest/suppliers>

2. Basic principles

- ✓ Child labour: The employment of children in breach of the provisions of the conventions of the ILO (International Labour Organisation) is not permitted. (ILO Convention no. 138).
- ✓ Forced and compulsory labour, and human trafficking: Workers will have the freedom to terminate the employment relationship in accordance with the established notice period. Under no circumstances may forced and compulsory labour be engaged. Forced and compulsory labour is considered to be demanding an individual under threat in the absence of voluntary offer by said individual. (ILO Convention nos. 29 and 105). Human trafficking is considered a violation of human rights and will be prosecuted as a crime against human dignity.
- ✓ Modern slavery: The supplier shall not breach so-called "Modern Slavery", including situations where coercion, threats or deception are used to exploit victims and undermine or deprive them of their freedom. Such as contained in the UK's Modern Slavery Act, Australia's Modern Slavery Act or California's Transparency in the Supply Chain Act (TISCA), among others. See the section entitled 'Global Slavery Index' in the Global Supply Chain Manual.
- ✓ Freedom of association: Workers will have the right to freely associate, to form trade unions and to appoint representatives. The supplier shall ensure that trade union independence and pluralism are respected. (ILO Convention nos. 87 and 135).
The supplier undertakes to promote collective bargaining as a central element of social dialogue. (ILO Convention no. 68).
- ✓ Remuneration and welfare benefits: Remuneration and welfare benefits shall meet legal minimums and the guaranteed and/or agreed minimum wage.

The supplier recognises the principle of equal pay for workers of the same professional category and performance, in particular between men and women. (ILO Convention no. 100).

- ✓ Working hours: Working hours shall comply with applicable legislation in force, standards of the business sector or ILO conventions, according to which is the strictest regulation.

- ✓ Fair treatment: The practice or support of acts of physical, verbal, sexual or psychological harassment, abuse or threats in the workplace is not allowed. Disciplinary policies or procedures shall be defined and disseminated to all workers, and measures will be adopted to prevent and repair these acts.
- ✓ Use of private or public security forces: Suppliers must not commission or use private or public security forces to protect the business if, due to a lack of training or control on the part of the company, the deployment of the security forces may lead to violations of human rights.
- ✓ Equality and diversity: The supplier is committed to implementing effective policies, commitments and action plans that promote equality and diversity, as well as for other rights, such as the prevention of cruelty, degradation and inhumane conduct, etc.

No discrimination in recruitment and career development based on culture, nationality, sex, religion, political and trade union beliefs, differences in experience, professional background, physical characteristics, pregnancy, age, health status, and sexual orientation shall be permitted (ILO Convention No. 111).

- ✓ Health and safety: The supplier undertakes to put into practice effective workplace health and safety policies based on prevention, and in the form of action plans and commitment involving everyone according to their level of responsibility, including social agents. (ILO Convention no. 155).

Workers must enjoy a healthy and safe working environment that meets or exceeds applicable occupational health and safety standards.

- ✓ Environment: The supplier must as according to the principle of precaution with respect for environmental issues, take initiatives to promote greater environmental responsibility, and foster the development and diffusion of environmentally respectful technologies. Accordingly, the possession of an ISO 14001 certificate or any equivalent regulation will be valued.

Chemical substances or other substances hazardous if released into the environment must be identified and controlled to guarantee their handling, transit, storage, recycling or reuse and safe removal.

The supplier undertakes to adopt a voluntary policy of research in order to make its products progressively respectful of the environment.

The supplier is committed to tackling environmental pollution, including noise, light, air, soil and water pollution. Furthermore, care for the environment and biodiversity implies the prevention of deforestation, a commitment to animal welfare and the rejection of animal abuse.

✓ Commercial ethics

- a) Integrity: A maximum level of integrity is expected in any commercial activity and relationship. Any form of corruption, bribery (gifts and entertainment, sponsorship, donations), extortion, influence peddling and fraud will be prosecuted.
- b) Fair competition: Fair business, advertising and competition standards will be maintained and responsible taxation will be exercised, submitted and paying tax obligations in due time and avoiding double taxation.
- c) Privacy and information: Reasonable privacy expectations will be protected on personal information of all those engaged in business, including suppliers, clients, consumers and workers.
- d) Intellectual property: Intellectual property rights will be respected. The transfer of technology and knowledge will be carried out to ensure protection of intellectual property rights.
- e) Local communities and indigenous people: Local communities will be consulted on activities, projects, strategies and works affecting their territories and lives through a process of Free, Prior and Informed Consent and with adequate cultural procedures. This will ensure that there is no participation in or benefit from undue forced relocations.

3. Undertaking

The supplier acknowledges to have been informed of this above and undertakes to apply it in its company or group of companies, regardless of the country in which it operates. In turn, upon acceptance of this document it undertakes to obtain a similar commitment with its own suppliers as that adopted with CIE Automotive, S.A.
